

Binky and The Chronicles of Barnia...

Letter from the CEO pg. 2
Fur-Get-Me-Not Telethon pg. 7

Nikki's house is a dream come true for animals and animal-lovers alike. She lives on a large plot of land, in a tack house that has been converted to living space. She has two horses who sleep right next door in the barn, and rescue dogs and cats that have made themselves at home. She has a giant pig named Henry, who she took in when he was small. The animals co-exist peacefully, each with their own space, but sharing some space, too. While it's a good deal of work, it's also a menagerie that most of us would envy.

Comet certainly would have, if she could've even imagined it. The large, white rabbit was living a much less idyllic life when the APL's Humane Investigations team met her. She was one of more than a hundred animals—dogs, cats, rabbits, chickens, turkeys, pigeons, a pig, a goat, and more—who were living in terrible conditions in a small Cleveland back yard and had to be seized and brought to safety by our team.

All of the animals in Barnia make a point to follow the golden rule!

Comet's life did get better, briefly, after that. She was adopted by a young woman, but then was returned to the APL a few months later, when the woman realized she didn't have the time she needed to devote to her pet.

In the meantime, Nikki was working on her living space at the farm, which she persuaded her landlord to sell to her. She constructed a bunny hutch with a passageway that led outside to a fenced-in yard. The outdoor pen even had a wire cover, to keep the bunny safe from cats and birds. Unfortunately, her rabbit, Hamish, passed away before he had a chance to use his luxurious bunny quarters.

Nikki decided that it would be a shame not to let somebunny use this wonderful home. She contacted the APL to find a rabbit that needed something of a break, or an older bunny that other adopters might pass by. It wouldn't have to be the cuddliest rabbit, she reasoned, but perhaps an independent one, who wouldn't mind

Letter from the CEO

We call it our Second Chance program, but truth be told, it has become our Give Them Whatever Number of Chances They Need program!

When I joined the Cleveland APL in 2007, the Second Chance program was a brilliant concept on the verge of becoming a program. But, there were difficult financial realities. As our Director of Operations once explained, "We had no money!"

During those early days, our spending limit for "extra" veterinary care per animal was $75. Obviously, that helped us to save more animals, but there were so many more who needed more expensive treatment and could not be helped. So, we asked you to increase your support for this program, and you did. When we were able to start treating dogs for heartworm, which at that time averaged $300, we were over the moon! We kept asking you to increase your support, and you did.

Because you agreed that our "scratch 'n dent" animals deserve as many chances as it takes to piece them back together so we can find them new homes, there is little we are not treating today. Just last week, we sent a dog for anterior cruciate repair surgery and a cat for a procedure to have obstructed nasal passages ballooned open. We have reached a day when money alone does not determine whether or not an animal will live or die. We now bear the responsibility of making humane decisions about quality of life and whether or not an animal should be treated, just like every good, loving, responsible pet owner.

Fifteen years ago, I left a pretty secure, fulfilling career of eighteen years in healthcare administration because I could no longer stomach being on the sidelines. I hated seeing animals in cages—still do—and could not—can not—accept that they should lose their homes or lives because there are too many, because the people they love do not want them anymore, or because their owners can not manage or afford their care. We've come a long, long way on the first, will never completely fix the second, and now our focus is to start working on the third.

Sharon Harvey and Roo

Sheer numbers and dollars alone no longer drive decision-making about who can go up for adoption at the Cleveland APL. While we sustain the amazing lifesaving work of the Second Chance program for animals who have no option but to come to us, we now need to expand existing and explore new lifesaving opportunities that preserve the human-animal bond and keep animals healthy and happy in their own homes with the good people they love. I passionately believe this is the future of animal welfare. After all, while we all have opinions about what is best for these animals, the opinion that matters most is theirs.

Thank you for making second chances possible and their opinion matter.

being the only rabbit in the family. Comet was exactly that rabbit. Nikki met her at the APL, and brought this big, fluffy beauty home, to the place Nikki laughingly refers to as "Barnia."

It's hard to imagine what Comet thought when she saw her new digs. Originally from a cramped, noisy, over-crowded pen in the city to a newly-constructed bunny villa in the country, where she could come and go as she pleased? She must have thought she'd entered Bunnytopia! Her joy at her new surroundings even led to her new name, Binky. As Nikki explains, rabbits, when they're feeling particularly excited and happy, will "bink," that is, do a sort of rabbit happy dance. A few weeks after Comet's arrival, Nikki looked out to see her in the yard leaping, twisting, kicking her feet, even falling over—the elated bunny was binking! It was a perfect new name to go with the rabbit's new life. Comet became Binky.

Now Binky spends her days as she pleases, enjoying the breeze in the grass while conversing with Henry the Pig, or napping in her hutch while the dogs, Worzel and Ferguson, relax nearby. The horses graze, the cats roam, and Nikki explains, the animals all have been brought to understand that in this home, "friends don't eat friends." Binky revels each day in her good fortune, and peace reigns in "Barnia."

Binky returns to her hutch every night for a bite to eat.

A Day in the Life of an APL Veterinarian

When people think of the Cleveland APL, many simply think we are a shelter that takes in and adopts out animals. While that aspect of our work is important and essential, we are so much more than an adoption center.

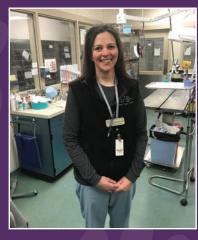

In 2017, more than 13,000 animals were helped by our Cleveland APL team. At some point during their journeys with us, a member of our dedicated, amazing clinic team probably played a role in their story.

Our veterinary clinic offers a combination of general practice, emergency practice, and surgery. Two surgery rooms run five days a week, providing mostly spay/ neuter surgery to up to 70 animal patients a day. The vast majority of our patients are either our own shelter animals, stray or community cats, or adoptable animals from other shelters and rescue groups. In addition to performing spay/neuter surgery, our clinic team also performs other types of surgery, monitors and provides medical care to the hundreds of animals in our shelter and volunteer foster homes, and even provides emergency care to homeless animals or animal victims of abuse who come to the APL.

As you can imagine, a day in the life of our clinic team is never dull! They treat acute conditions, like upper respiratory infections, infected bite wounds, and limb injuries, and chronic conditions, like mange, heartworm, and thyroid disease. They even help animals who have been hit by cars or have ingested toxic substances. As long as our team believes the care they will provide is humane, will relieve suffering, and is in the best interest of the animal—in other words, that we should provide care—there is little they will not try to treat.

Just like Sharon stated in her letter on page 2, our Head of Veterinary Services, Dr. Allison Lash, who has been with the Cleveland APL for 10 years, is thrilled with how far we have come. "We have gone from treating basic conditions like small wounds, upper respiratory infections and flea infestations, to a place where, as long as an animal is happy and treatable, we can help them," Dr. Lash shared. We are now able treat—and even manage—chronic conditions like arthritis, allergic skin conditions, and so much more. When you get right down to it, we now are able to provide access to the same level of care an animal would get in private practice or an emergency clinic, which is an amazing achievement of which we are very proud.

"We used to talk about whether or not we could treat each animal before initiating additional care; now we just go ahead and treat them. One of our biggest changes in decisionmaking is we rarely talk about 'if' we can treat an animal anymore. Instead, we talk about 'how'—how can we best and most humanely help the animal in front of us."

Head of Veterinary Services, Dr. Allison Lash

Because of those 'how' conversations, last year alone we were able to provide approximately 400 medically necessary dental procedures, 3,576 diagnostic tests, and nearly 4,800 medical treatments and surgeries. Those "hows" led to more than 5,700 adoptions. While most of those animals were healthy, this number now includes animals who needed more help—geriatric animals, animals with thyroid problems, bladder stones, orthopedic challenges, chronic skin or eye conditions, and a host of other medical issues that will require ongoing prescription diets, medication, and veterinary care. Other than their medical challenges, they all have something else in common. Because people like you believe they deserved a second chance, they got oneand sadly, it is a chance they may not have gotten a few years ago.

When asked where she'd like to see the Cleveland APL's clinic in the future, Dr. Lash had two dreams: to be able to provide orthopedic services in-house, and to routinely offer services to lower-income, underserved pet owners so we can help animals and their people stay together. With your help, we will make her next dreams—and their dreams—come true. Stay tuned!

Dr. Allison Lash and part of the Cleveland APL Clinic Team

Thank You to the Cleveland Monsters...

...for welcoming dogs and their owners to the 10th Annual Pucks & Paws event at Quicken Loans Arena. The APL was the beneficiary of the dog tickets as well as a portion of the human tickets sold for the Cleveland Monsters hockey game on Sunday, April 8. The Monsters also helped the APL raise additional funds by donating a portion of the proceeds from a 50/50 raffle. In all, the APL received more than $3,400 from the event!

Another Happy Tale

Frankie Gets a Second Chance

One of our favorite things at the APL is helping an animal get a second chance at a loving home. Frankie was one of those who needed a fresh start.

Frankie was surrendered to the APL by his owner, who said he could not keep the small dog because he was aggressive around his food and not good with children or other dogs.

The APL staff accepted the sixyear-old Shih-Tzu mix. They didn't find him difficult to handle. But, they did notice that his hair was so matted that it was difficult for him to move. Volunteers and staff soon removed the mats and made him more comfortable, and the small dog's true personality began to emerge.

Staff members watched Frankie carefully. He didn't guard his food. He seemed to be housebroken. He liked going on walks, and passed by other dogs without much reaction. Maybe, they reasoned, the pain he suffered from his matted fur explained some of the less-thanideal behavior his former owner had reported. Eventually, the little fellow graduated to playgroup, where he romped with the other dogs in the "Gentle and Dainty" class.

It was time for Frankie's second chance. He went to the APL's Parma PetSmart® location, where he met Claudia. Claudia had been looking for a Shih-Tzu, after the unexpected loss her previous rescue, Timmy. Frankie immediately recognized Claudia's kind heart, and climbed in her lap. He snuggled up to her husband, Matt, too. They adopted him that day.

Frankie was christened with his new name a couple of days later. He was named after Cleveland Indian Francisco Lindor, the cheerful baseball player with the magnetic smile. It was a perfect choice, because Frankie soon had so much to be happy about. Frankie not only has a loving home with Claudia and Matt, he also has an extended family that loves him. He plays with his two-year-old human cousin, who treats Frankie, and all other animals, gently. Frankie snoozes on the couch with his canine cousin. also a Shih-Tzu. He even comforted Matt's grandma when she was sick, sleeping in her lap for hours. It's not all rest and relaxation, though; Frankie takes long walks with Claudia and Matt in the Metroparks, too. There even may be a camping trip in Frankie's future! And on a bright, sunny day in March, Claudia, Matt and Frankie were headed to Edgewater Park to try their hands (and paws) at fishing.

Looking at Frankie sitting on Claudia's lap, it's hard to believe he is the same dog surrendered to the APL less than a year before. He sits peacefully, accepting affectionate petting. His soft fur is beautifully groomed. He glances up frequently at Claudia, who smiles lovingly as she explains what a good dog Frankie is. When it's time to go, Frankie jumps down, tail wagging, ready for his next adventure. Frankie deserved a second chance at a happy life, and thankfully he found it. Congratulations, Frankie, on your lovely new life!

An Odd Couple Finds Their Forever Home

Pittsburgh residents Anthony and his wife, Christine, were dog people. They had a beloved Jack Russell Terrier, Nicole, who they lost after an illness. Following that loss, they decided they just weren't ready for another dog.

The couple had their first encounter with the Cleveland APL when they came to Cleveland to visit their daughter. They accompanied her on a trip to the Parma PetSmart® store where she picked up supplies for Neville, her FIV+ cat. They ventured over to the part of the store that houses the Cleveland APL's PetSmart Charities® Everyday Adoption Center. There, two cats caught Anthony—the dog-lover's—eye.

If you'd have told Anthony that Omi was part bobcat, he'd have believed it. This strong, muscular little guy was like a little lion, with a ton of personality! His neighbor in the kennel was a little gray female cat, Molly. She was pregnant when she arrived at the Cleveland APL. She gave birth and lovingly raised her kittens in the home of an APL Foster Care volunteer. Molly was a wonderful mom! All her kittens were adopted, and now Molly was just waiting patiently for her new family to pick her and take her home. Molly was born without cartilage in her eyelids so her eyelashes rubbed her eyes, causing her discomfort. The APL veterinary team performed surgery to alleviate the rubbing but sweet Molly would need an adopter who would continue to monitor and care for her eye condition. Animal lover Anthony worried about whether anyone would want to take her home. He knew from his experience with Nicole that caring for an animal with a medical problem could be daunting.

He went home that day without either of the cats. Still, he couldn't get them out of his mind. Omi had been in the APL's care for two months after being transferred to the Cleveland APL from another shelter, and Molly had been in the APL's care for more than six months. They both had such big personalities, and he was charmed by the backstories on their cage cards. But he wanted to be sure. After a couple of weeks, he made the decision and returned to Cleveland and adopted Omi! Little Molly was still there, waiting for her person. So, Anthony called his veterinarian to see what kind of care she would need, and then called back to the Everyday Adoption Center to see if she was still there. She was—and the next thing he knew, he was on the way back to Cleveland to pick up Molly.

Omi and Molly settled into their new home almost instantly. Omi cuddles all day long. If Anthony is on the sofa, Omi's there. If he's going to bed, Omi's there. Omi can even tell time (well, at least he can tell when it's dinner time!) He doesn't like to be picked up though, and makes little noises expressing his displeasure. Molly, on the other hand, is "a sweet, precious, little instigator," running by and smacking Omi to try to entice him into a game of tag, but also happy to just be cuddled and held. Her cross eyes don't stop her! She's still has some challenges with her eyelids, but her loving owners put drops in her eyes a few times every day. No problem! Anthony had no idea cats could be this amazing, loving and smart! Nothing could fill the empty space left by their beloved dog, but these two unique cats with big personalities have filled a void in their lives. And the knowledge that they were helping two shelter cats who had been waiting for just the right humans to come along makes this happily-ever-after just purrfect!

Become A Cage Sponsor! Until They Find Their New Home and Family...

The Cleveland Animal Protective League lovingly cares for thousands of homeless, injured and abused animals each year. For some, their cage at the APL, complete with a warm bed, toys, plenty of food and water, and lots of TLC, is the only "home" they have ever known. For others, it's a temporary home until they find the love of another family. For all of them, it's the reason they're getting a second chance. Our annual cage permanently. We ask that you help us to provide all of the care and love they need while they are with us by becoming a cage sponsor.

Your cage sponsorship will be recognized with a plaque on a cage in our cat, dog or small mammal adoption center areas. You may choose to make your cage sponsorship in honor or in memory of a special pet or person or you may choose to advertise your business. Cage sponsorships are renewable every year.

At the Cleveland Animal Protective League, healthy, friendly animals stay with us until they are adopted. We all know a cage in a shelter is not a permanent home, but with your cage sponsorship, we can make it a temporary home away from home until they have one of
