

Veterinary Clinics Offering Financial Assistance

During these economic times, some pet owners are waiting longer than usual to schedule appointments with their veterinarian. But small health problems can escalate into larger issues that become more serious for the pet down the road. For optimum health and wellness, all pets should have a veterinarian exam at least once a year. For many pets, more frequent visits may be needed. Many people are unable to provide timely care for their animal when he or she becomes ill due to the expenses that come with a veterinarian visit. Below is a list of Veterinarian clinics that may be able to assist with financial aid when your animal is in need of care.

CARE CREDIT

Many patients put off treatments and procedures because they cannot afford to pay. Doctors offer CareCredit payment plans as a convenient option to consumer credit cards, cash or checks. CareCredit allows you to pay over time often without incurring interest charges instead of a lump sum prior to treatment. Offering CareCredit removes the accounts receivable responsibilities from the doctor and allows them to focus on recommending and providing the best care to their patients.

Call (800) 677-0718 to apply for a CareCredit card.

You can use their easy, automated system anytime or you can apply with a live agent Monday through Friday from 9:00am – 9:00pm (EST). Either way you will find out immediately if you are approved.
